- Let us introduce ourselves.

We are zubka.com. And we're an innovative website (one of Yahoo's best new sites of 2006, no less) that allows anyone to earn money by simply referring friends for jobs. And anyone includes charities.

In fact, we have a special system for helping charities maximise their donations with the minimum of effort.

Let us explain.

click how we work

- In a nutshell, we help people find jobs for their friends. If someone registers with us, recommends a friend for a job posted on zubka.com and the friend gets the job, two things happen. They get a nice warm feeling from doing it. And they get money. So you do your friend a favour – and yourself one.

click how we work with charities

- If your charity members join Zubka and they refer a friend who's then placed in a job, the charity benefits. Courtesy of us. We'll donate 5% of the total placement fee - around £250 - to the charity. And the charity member will also get their reward – on average £3,600. So the referrer has found a job for a friend, made some money and helped the charity. Making them feel good three times over.

Us giving that 5% is one way Zubka gives its members a chance to help a charity. The other is for members to elect to donate up to 100% of their reward to the charity. Guaranteed to make them, and the charity, feel even better.

To give you the best chance of making the most of Zubka, we ask you to encourage your members to register. Because more people means more chance of more money.

who's with us

- So far thousands of referrers have signed up to Zubka. Hundreds of jobs are being advertised. And we've made inroads in 73 countries. (Well, you may have a friend going to Australia who's looking for a job in computing.) So we can spread the word about your charity globally through our thousands of users.

We already have a number of charities on board. And many others close to signing up. Why? Because they've realised it's a chance to raise a lot of money with very little effort.

donations only a click away

- It's so simple to join. Just visit zubka.com and click through to the 'charities' page and email charities@zubka.com to set up an account.

It's an easy step to helping increase your donations. And it will only take a couple of clicks.
